

I am writing to urge the Commission not to drop its plan to require wireless number portability by November 2002. This requirement - already existing for most wired phones - is a necessity to ensure competition among wireless providers, and to aid the using public in changing services.